READ THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE AND ANSWER ALL THE QUESTIONS THAT FOLLOW.

Oscar Romero was appointed head of the Roman Catholic Church in El Salvador at a time when it was a place of great poverty and suffering for many people. The wealth of the country was controlled by a small number of people who were supported by the army. Many attempts to improve the conditions of the poor were put down by violence. Oscar Romero felt called to follow the example of Jesus and speak out on behalf of the poor. Whenever he saw that the human rights of people were not being respected, he spoke out and demanded explanations from the government. He encouraged public protests against injustice and urged people to protest peacefully saying “only evil profits by murder”. Oscar Romero used his position as a church leader to tell the world about what was happening in his country. He opened his home to people who were trying to get away from the violence and allowed a radio station to be set up in the office of the cathedral. This radio station made it possible for people, all over the country, to listen each week to the sermons Oscar Romero preached about the rights of the poor.

His sermons were often critical of the government and gave comfort to the people who were suffering because of the injustice and violence in the country. Oscar Romero knew that his life was being put at risk by speaking out against injustice. He said “my life has been threatened many times... I am obliged to give my life for those I love ...for the people of El Salvador.”

On March 23rd 1980 Oscar Romero used the radio broadcast of his sermon to appeal for all those involved in violence to stop the killing in El Salvador. The day after he made this appeal Oscar Romero was shot dead by a gunman while celebrating the Eucharist.
